

But, it being tomorrow today, the sun not even out, I've been sitting inside all day doing nothing. Oh well, waiting is being, being is waiting.

When I was 14 I was given the world as a birthday cake. Since that time I have discovered that it is one thing to be given such a present; but quite another to suppp of it, fully, and in silent and enduring pleasure.

Welcome to my morning,
Welcome to my day.
Yes, I'm the one responsible
I made it just this way.
I made myself some pictures,
To see what they might bring.
I think I made it perfectly
I wouldn't change a thing.

Welcome to my happiness
You know it makes me smile
And it pleases me to have you here
For just a little while.
While we open up new spaces,
Try to break some chains
And if the truth is told
They will never come again.

Your children are not your children.
They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself.

They come through you but not from you.
And though they are with you
yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love
but not your thoughts,
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies but
not their souls,
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.

You may strive to be like them,
but seek not to make them
like you.
For life goes not backward
nor carries with yesterday.

You are the bows from which
your children as living arrows
are sent forth.

The archer seeks the mark
upon the path of the infinite,
and He bends you with His might that His arrows may go swift and far.

Let your bending in the
archer's hand be for gladness;
For even as He loves the arrow that flies, so he loves
also the bow that is stable.

When I am sad tell me that life continues.
Tell me that the sun still shines
and the stars still dance
tell me that the flowers still grow
and waters still flow
tell me that nothing really
ever comes to an end
but that everything must pass
tell me to dance with the stars
and grow with the flowers
tell me to live in the sun
and offer its light
for there are many much sadder
than I
and I must help them

Getting to know people is difficult.
With some it is a broad straight highway
leading directly into their being.
With others it is a narrow crooked path evading the truth.
I have no insight into a person's soul, which is very bad, but then,
only very special people do.

BOYS TRACK

GIRLS TRACK

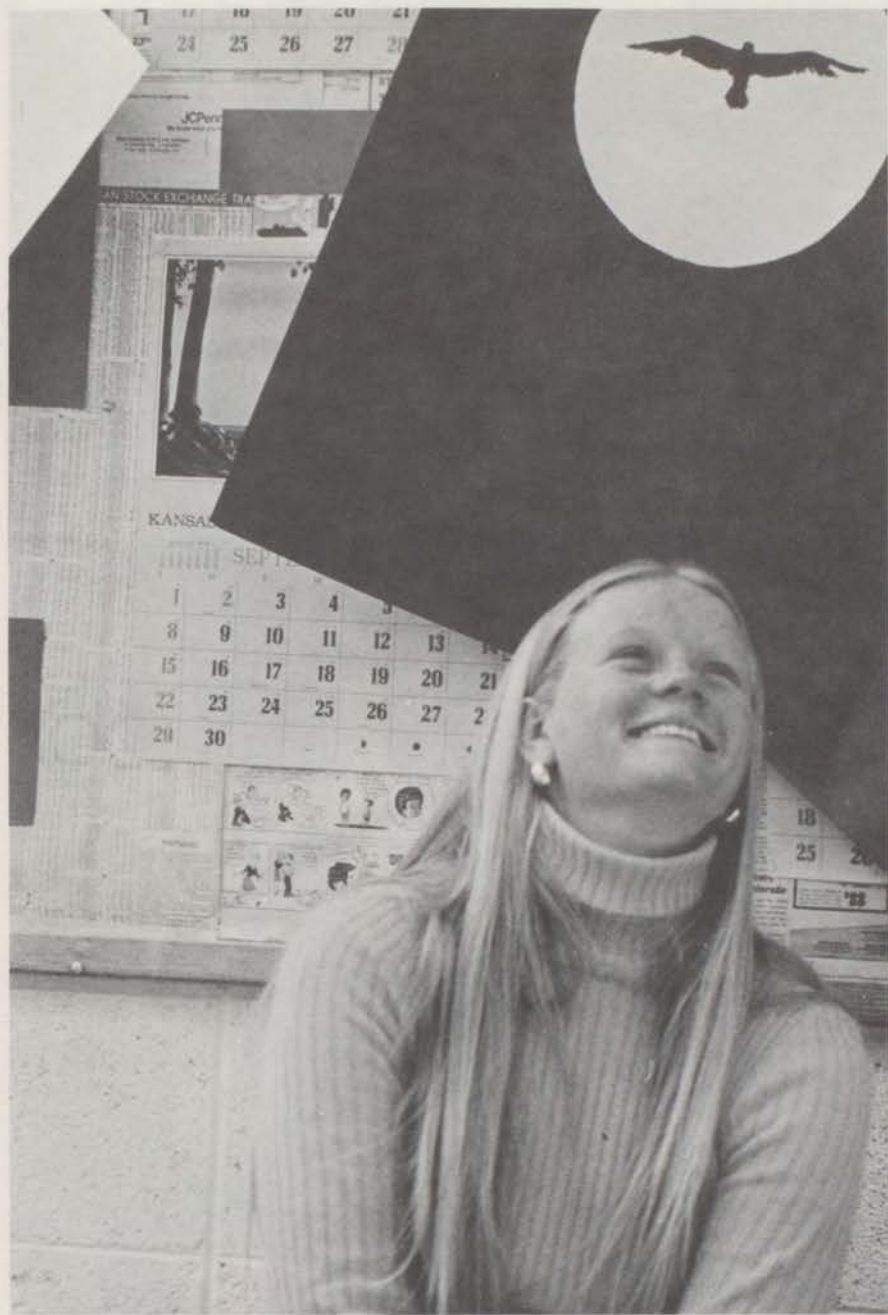

Mrs. Lewis

G.A.A.

To me, there are two or three states of mind: the first and most prevalent is contentment, a feeling of happiness that is comforting to any mind. Being content is taking it easy, cruising with a smile.

Then there is a state of mind that is far above contentment. It comes into being when everything is just going your way, nothing there to upset you, everything to increase your euphorism.

Then there enters me sometimes a useless ridiculous feeling or state of mind. It is the depression, the feeling of worthlessness. I seldom feel this way, but when I do, it is worthless. It gets me nowhere, gives me nothing. Who needs it?

Everything has its own song,
the birds, wind, and rain.
Open your ears to the sweet melody and harmony they play.

How can people say what you are?
Do you really know yourself?

A child runs gracefully
to the edge of a meadow,
where she stops to pick a flower. Then runs carefully to bring her mother the simple joy she found in the delicate bud of life.

Time has passed as a rushing water fall. What do I have to show for it?

I haven't a need to tell
people who or what I am.
For the fine ones will seek to find out.

Have you ever felt the
tender handshake of the wind?
Have you ever felt the sweet
kiss of a lemon?
Have you ever felt the gentle
touch of rain?
Have you ever felt the simple
joy for living?
